Tending Three Magpies

Tending Three Magpies are a paid bereavement support service.

They offer person-centred support for people at the end of their lives or who are grieving.

They can help you to do some early thinking about and planning for the end of your life so your wishes are known. They can be alongside you as a companion if you have been given a terminal diagnosis. All levels of support are offered.

They work face to face or online.

They work with people who are grieving and who need some extra support and understanding.

They offer safe, affirming support to people in LGBTQIA+ communities.

They offer adapted, accessible support for people who have learning disabilities. They offer varied suppor,t as grieving is a personal and unique process.

They run creative group activities to support people to think about and talk about the end of life.

Everyone can access their services by completing the enquiry form on their website.

Last updated: August 15, 2025

Website: https://tending3magpies.co.uk/

Email: karen3magpies@gmail.com

Opening Hours: They work with individuals at the time and date that suits the person.
Group activities are advertised on their website and social media

Cost: There may be a cost to this service/support

Address:
They have no premises, and use community facilities to run their events
NE1 7PF

Related Articles

Bereavement and grief